

Mentorship is a call to duty for all of us.

“It is the men and women of America who will fill that need. One mentor, one person, can change a life forever.”

*President George W. Bush
State of the Union Address
January 28, 2003*

- Encourage someone to advance their skills, capabilities, and confidence?
- Guide a person towards growth beyond his/her expectations?
- Offer perspective on what it takes to succeed?
- Pass on your legacy of service to a new generation?
- Improve the quality of the Army by helping one person?

Become an Army Mentor...

The Army of tomorrow will be the Army you help build today.

Maximize your Army experience through mentorship.

Advance Faster. Rise Higher. Accomplish More.

Time passes so quickly in the Army. As a mentor, you can be confident that you will have passed on your knowledge and experience to the next generation when it is time for you to leave the Service.

Army Mentorship is a voluntary program, and anyone can be a mentor regardless of rank, duty location, or career field. What you can provide as a mentor is clear: your knowledge, insight and wisdom.

The rewards of Mentorship are great:

- Enjoy greater career satisfaction by helping someone to exceed their expectations.
- Expand your professional contacts through interaction with other mentors and through your relationships with those you mentor.
- Sharpen your management and leadership skills. Interpersonal skills improve with practice; being a mentor helps you exercise those skills and capabilities.
- Gather resources and information. Your mentee can be a rich source of insight and fresh ideas.

Share the experience you've gained throughout your Army career – be a mentor.

Mentorship has been a part of our culture for years and is an extremely powerful tool that can help build competence, leadership skills, self-awareness and morale. Mentorship will not work without the dedication of experienced professionals like you, however.
